Length built: 6, 214 miles in the Northern and Southern dynasties (420 - 589) - When the unified Han dynasty fell, several dynasties rose up creating chaos within the Empire. Contrary to what used to be thought upon hearing the name of the Great Wall of China, the wall is not composed of just a continuous structure, but is a network of walls and fortifications that is about 20,000 kilometers from which borders the northern territories of ancient and imperial China. People in ancient China saw the wall not as a source of pride or national unity. These walls were built to serve as a defence of the country against the invasions and attacks of the different migratory tribes living on the steppes of Eurasia like the Mongols and the Russians. Jin Dynasty (1115 - 1234) - The Jin dynasty reigned heavily in the northeastern parts of China after the fall of music. This was the Southern Song dynasty.
